

IRAQI KURDISTAN STUDY TOUR MAY

Tour Date:

12. Mai 2018 bis 21. Mai 2018

After decades of war and violence, Iraqi Kurdistan is today experiencing profound economic and social changes. The mushrooming of gated communities, grand shopping malls and luxurious restaurants points towards the astounding new wealth acquired by some parts of the society. While some regard Iraqi-Kurdistan as predestined to become the new Dubai, most of its population has other priorities. The region is experiencing a deep economic crisis and many people are without a job. Other concerns range from protecting the environment to starting a process to reconcile the violent past with the present and creating a more just society.

Our focus

An essential part of this trip is engaging with civil society activists in Iraqi Kurdistan. What do women's rights activists, both the old and new Peshmerga, journalists, and ordinary citizens think about the politics and society in today's Iraqi Kurdistan?

We will learn about the everyday realities, hopes and wishes of people living in historic villages, like Amadiye and Lalesh, or in major cities such as Sulaymaniya, Dohuk, and Erbil.

Led by our seasoned partners from Go-Wild-Kurdistan, we'll hike on mountain paths once used by the Peshmerga and explore nature in its historical context.

Sulaimaniyya

Sulaimaniyya is the cultural capital of the Kurdish part of Iraq. Known for its university, the city is the second biggest in the autonomous region Kurdistan, counting about 1.607.000 inhabitants.

Erbil

Erbil ist capital and seat of the autonomous Kurdish government in Northern Iraq. Its Christian quarter Ain Kawa houses many Assyrians, some of whom originating from Mossul or the Niniveh plains where they had to flee the so called Islamic State.

Dohuk and Surroundings

Around Dohuk - literally translated „little village“ - there are many refugee camps. We will discover the fantastic landscape of the nearby Gara Mountains on a two-day hike.

Amediyeh

This 3000 year old city's location on a mountain plateau offers spectacular sights.

Reisebegleitung

Schluwa Sama

Schluwa earned a MSc in Middle East Politics at SOAS, University of London and an MA in Politics and Economics of the Middle East at Philipps University Marburg, Germany. Currently, she is a PhD candidate at the Centre for Kurdish Studies, University of Exeter. Her research focuses on the political economy of Iraqi Kurdistan. As a guide for political study excursions to Iraqi Kurdistan, it is most important that participants come to a critical understanding of their very own positions towards West Asia.

Christoph Dinkelaker

Christoph is Co-Founder of Alsharq and today the Co-Director of Alsharq Travel. Due to his studies of Political Sciences, History and Islamic Studies he has been working on and in the region for many years. In 2015, he conducted his first Alsharq tour in Iraqi-Kurdistan. Even today, he is overwhelmed by the Kurdish people's openness and the stunning beauty of the mountains.
